

NEW ATTRACTIONS AT THE PANTAGES

Two Headliners Will Be Seen
With Features Novel to City of Edmonton.

The offering at the Pantages next week will include two headlining attractions that are entirely new in Vancouver. No acts of their kind have ever been brought to this city and on that account large audiences are expected to witness every performance next week. Twelve Arabs, under the guidance of Amen, about Hamid, will appear as the first headliner in an acrobatic act. These foreigners are very clever in their line of work and work so fast that it is difficult for the naked eye to follow their movements. The second headliner will furnish a true story of Indian life, when Jose Moreno and her company will present "The Indian Hunter." It is set in picturesque scenery and several beautiful electrical effects will serve to make the act more attractive and delightful. Pansy Moore and Davey, with their dancing Pitt, will appear in a novel dancing act. The Jodeling Harlequins are the world's premier hat throwers and club manipulators, while Anderson and Burns are colored comedians.

CARL McCULLOUGH "JOY GERM" NEXT

He Will Be at Empire Theatre
First Half of Next Week.

Carl McCullough, best known to theatre-goers of America as the "Joy Germ," who will be featured on the Emporium vaudeville bill at the Empire theatre the first half of next week, has had a spectacular vaudeville rise since he joined the variety two years ago. Entering this branch of the profession unknown and modest within a few months, he has come to a point where he can almost name his own terms. McCullough, who was an inconspicuous member of the Melvite and Heath company before his vaudeville career, owes his success to his grotesque conception of the work of the great stars of today. He does not imitate nor does he actually burlesque, but he contrives to find a medium between the two which, like a good cartoon, gives satisfaction of the resemblance to his character, and still enough lampooning and caricaturing to play the leading weaknesses, strongholds, and shining characteristics of his subjects. He calls his turn, "Foolish Impressions," and makes no apology for his own conception of the work and personality of the stage characters whom he uses for his pictures.

WEEK IN ADVANCE
ALL SEATS RESERVED ONE

TODAY IN DOMINION HISTORY.

What was called the "Nova Scotia cyclone," although by no means confined to that province, began forty years ago today, and continued to rage along the Atlantic coast for two weeks. The storm was the worst and most destructive that had ever visited the Canadian coast, and was equally severe in the eastern part of the United States. Its ravages were terrible, and owing to the long continuance of the storm, the superstitious persons believed that the end of the world was at hand. It is known that 1,200 vessels of varying size, were destroyed. The fishing industry of Canada was severely crippled. The money loss caused by the storm was not less than $3,000,000.

A quarter of a century ago today the steamer Geller, of the Tinnivalia line, ran into the Tinnivalia, of the same line, near Sable Island, eighty-five miles east of Nova Scotia. The impact was so terrible that the Geller was almost in two, and sank in eight minutes. Of her passengers and crew, 117 were lost and only thirty-four saved. The Tinnivalia was seriously injured, but managed with great difficulty to reach Halifax, and the first news of the disaster was sent out from that city. On the date in 1835 Baron Alvimor, whose family have long been prominent in Canada, resigned the governorship. Two years after his retirement the spirit of discontent flared forth in open rebellion.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

Centenary of Capture of Argus by the Pelican

While the cities along the Great Lakes are celebrating the coming century of Perry's great victory on Lake Erie, it is well to recall that the war which ushered in a century of Anglo-Saxon peace, had its origins in a British sailor and seaman, which had been the sea of the French and Spanish fleets at Trafalgar, were pitted against men of the same mettle and blood and never-say-die determination in the war of 1812. The Argus soon learned to respect the prowess of the other. The god of battle forever now side, now the other, and the naval engagement which occurred in St. George's Channel just a century ago today, British arms were triumphant.

It was on the fourteenth of August, 1812, that the British brig Pelican, in command of Captain J. F. Myles, came up with the American brig Argus, Captain Allen commanding. The Argus had been dispatched to carry William H. Crawford to France as United States minister to that country. After completing that mission, she cruised about in British waters, and her destructive energy and rapidity of movement, gained a reputation throughout commercial England. Hearing the channel, and then sailing around Land's End, the Argus pounced on British merchant vessels, and in a period of a month captured 20 English vessels, with cargoes valued at upwards of $2,000,000. Operating as a free lance, with no friendly port, the Argus burned his prizes, first permitting non-combatants to remove their property. All of the business men of England were aroused, and joined in demanding that the government put a stop to the activities of the well-named Argus.

Several vessels were dispatched against the Argus, but the Pelican was alone when the American ship lay in wait. Although the Argus had an advantage in armament, Captain Myles did not hesitate to wait for assistance, but immediately opened hostilities by firing a broadside, which the Argus returned almost simultaneously. The battle had scarcely begun when Captain Allen, who had served under Deontor and was one of the bravest men in the American navy, was struck with a round shot which carried away one of his legs. With the blood pouring from the stump he refused to go below, but remained in charge until he felt unconscious from loss of blood. Lieutenant W. Howard Allen was left in command, and fought his ship bravely, but the men were dispirited by the loss of their commander, and what was worse, had not recovered from the effects of a too free indulgence in wine which they had captured the day before.

While Captain Allen lay dying in the cockpit, Lieutenant Allen sought to fire his broadside men to greater energy, but their spirit, numbered by liquor, did not respond. The Argus, with all her broadsides away and unmanageable, also seemed drunk, and reeled now this way, now that, while the Pelican raised her with a steady fire. At the end of 10 minutes more, Allen refused to surrender. Then another British vessel, the ship, and the Argus ran up the white flag. Twenty-three officers and sailors of the Argus were killed or wounded, while the Pelican's loss was only seven. Capt. Allen died on the day following the engagement.

When the news of the capture of the Argus reached London a great shout of relief went up from the business men, yet jubilation was tempered somewhat by the death of the gallant Allen, who had won the respect of Englishmen by his chivalrous treatment of non-combatants.

Mountain Climbing
The first ascent of Mount Muscaevan, Peru's highest peak and probably the highest in the western hemisphere, was completed five years ago today by Miss Annie S. Peak, the famous woman mountain climber. On that date, August 14, 1908, she reached an altitude of 25,000 feet, because it records the previous record was made by W. W. Graham, who ascended to a height of 25,000 feet, breaking all records. The previous record was made by W. W. Graham, who ascended to a height of 25,000 feet in the Himalayas. Miss Peak had made a previous attempt on Muscaevan, but upon reaching a height of 17,600 feet her guides refused to go on. On her successful expedition Miss Peak was accompanied by two Swiss guides from the Alps and a number of native carriers. The climb was so terrible that for a period of five days and nights the climbers were unable to sleep. On one occasion Miss Peak and one of the Swiss came within a few feet of slipping over a precipice. Rudolph Taugwalder, a foot and hand were so badly that his fingers and toes had to be amputated, and for

PORTS PREPARE FOR OPENING OF CANAL

The tremendous effect which the opening of the Panama Canal will have on the trade of the world is manifest in the vast sums that are in process or in prospect of being spent in seaports all over the world. The movement towards getting ready is practically world wide.

Los Angeles stands pledged to spend $10,000,000; San Francisco is operating a port development plan under a bond issue of $9,000,000. London proposes to spend $70,000,000 on improvements in the Thames, one new dock costing $10,000,000. The government of Chile has authorized a $20,000,000 loan for port improvements at Valparaiso and San Antonio. Valparaiso alone is to spend $12,000,000 to $13,000,000, which shows that the improvements projected are to be modern and expensive. It is estimated that in five Brazilian ports the great sum of $125,000 will be voted to port development, and that in the next five years $25,000,000 will be spent on docks at Buenos Ayres.

The latest project of the commissioner of docks of the city of New York provides for port expenditures amounting to nearly $85,000,000. Philadelphia will spend about $3,250,000.

The city of Havre, France, is making port improvements which will cost $20,000,000. The port of Boulogne, France, is similarly spending $6,000,000. The port of Calais, France, is also under development. Yokohama, Japan, is preparing for the Panama Canal with expansion of harbor limits, and many improvements are under way at the various American and other ports on the Gulf of Mexico.

Edmonton, from its geographical situation, stands to reap the first harvest from this immense trade. The grain of nearly half the prairie section of Canada must be gathered here for export via the canal and the imports of iron, glass, cotton and all the staples imported from Great Britain must be distributed from this point. The extent of the preparations being made by the seaports which expect to see their trade increased by the construction of the canal furnishes a very clear criterion by which to judge the extent to which the completion of the canal may be expected to affect Edmonton's trade.

THE PENALTY FOR FAILURE TO KEEP THE FAITH

One of the best evidences that it pays a government to keep the faith is being furnished at the present moment by the incidents at Vancouver Island collieries.

British Columbia, like Alberta, has a coal mines act which is designed to protect those engaged in the industry. In many essential respects the British Columbia act does not afford the same protection as the Alberta act, a condition which is accounted for by the fact that the act in B. C. has not been amended and brought up to date since the McBride government gathered sufficient strength in the house to carry on without the votes of the socialist members, upon whom the conservatives depended throughout the first term of their government.

One of the principle respects in which the British Columbia law affords those engaged in coal mining less protection than does the Alberta law is in the provision covering inspection. In Alberta the miners have the legal right to have an inspection of the workings of a mine for gas or other danger made by any competent miner; whether the miner is an employee or not makes no difference in Alberta. In B. C., however, inspection can be made only by men chosen by the employees of the mine "from among their number," an arrangement which places it within the power of the mining companies to discipline or blacklist any employee who, having made an inspection, has the temerity to bring in a report which intimates that the company is not doing its duty. The difference in the two acts in this respect reaches right down into the basis of human liberty, as it makes a man's bread and butter the penalty for protest against unnecessary risk to his calling.

In spite of this penalty, however, there were found men in the British Columbia mines who were willing to accept the penalty, and they reported to the McBride government that the conditions in certain mines were unnecessarily hazardous.

Upon this report the McBride government took no action, and the men went on strike, the direct cause of the strike being the government's failure to carry out its own law. McBride's first action, when the strike was declared, was to send in a horde of special policemen, who became the virtual servants of the mine-owners, who were the real law breakers.

The consequence of this action upon the part of the government is rioting, anarchy and bloodshed.

Waiving the moral obligation altogether, it would have paid the McBride government better to have kept the faith by enforcing instead of violating its own laws.

TIME TO CATCH SOMETHING BESIDES A REPUTATION.

While the chief of police rises to remark that the city is properly policed, while the mayor assures the public that the city of Edmonton has the best police protection on the continent, while the senior organ of the administration, the Journal, corroborates the mayor and eulogizes the police, and while the low-barge of the municipal machine, the Bulletin, brings up the rear with the declaration that since its recent temporary digression into the lithero unexplored channels of truth, the police service has been so renovated that it is perfect equipment for the protection of the person and property of each and every citizen; notwithstanding all these various and numerous assurances that the police are competent to stop all depredations, the busy burglar goes right straight along, night after night, breaking in wherever the fancies takes him and up to the hour of going to press not a single capture has been made.

If the police organization of the city is the perfect equipment for public protection that its newspaper apologists and the mayor would have the public believe, it is time they showed their efficiency by catching something else besides a bad reputation.

AUTOISTS VERY SPARING OF THEIR HORNS AT STREET CORNERS.

Not always does the visitor to Edmonton wonder at its glorious possibilities, its fine buildings and all the other evidences of prosperity. Sometimes he wonders at the things which are not to its credit, and one of them is the way the automobile traffic is regulated.

He cannot understand the way automobiles are allowed to sneak around street corners without any warning of their approach. He wonders why Edmontonians are content to dodge death under a heavy machine rather than raise a protest. He does not know that citizens have got so used to being nearly killed that they would be struck dead if an automobile were to give warning of its approach.

True there is a great tooling of horns at street intersections where there is a blue-coated guardian of the law to regulate the traffic, but west and east of First and every place else in the city automobiles are hurled around corners with never a squeak of a horn.

Pedestrians are supposed to be mind-readers. They are supposed to know just by looking at the bonnet of an automobile racing down a side street whether the machine is going to go straight ahead or turn at right angles. "I should worry," says the man at the wheel, as he watches the poor pedestrian making himself into the semblance of a corkscrew as he just escapes being hit.

Tooling a horn when the auto is almost on top of the one on foot does not help. The sudden noise is confusing. The pedestrian does not know which way to go. The time to toot is when the machine is still some yards away from a corner. Then those who cannot see the approaching machine can hear it. If they run in front of it then, it is their look-out.

Grown-ups have some chance but children have none. The only reason why there have not been more children killed is not due to the carefulness of autoists, by any means, but to the good geni that is watching over the destinies of the city.

Some of these fine days somebody's going to get killed at one of these street corners. Then there will be a great scurrying to shut the stable door when it is too late.

JUST PARAGRAPHS

Now that Tom Lawson has given Western Canada his O. K. there should be no further timidity. But if the Boston man had started to knock—

Is this Dan Alton who is going to save the city such immense sums in its construction department the same Dan Alton who bought the left-handed sweeper?

Dick McBride has denied the rumor that he was going to resign, but on the contrary will continue as premier of British Columbia as long as they will let him. Also, horses will continue to eat hay.

With the steam roller working in the council and the iron bookies working out at the grounds, Edmonton claims all the most modern mechanical appliances of this sophisticated and case-hardened age.

Rather funny to see the Bulletin and Journal fighting about who said something nasty about the police. As though either of them would design to express a thought derogatory to any department under the present administration.

WEYBURN IS GOING TO SECURE SHOPS

Reported that the Canadian Pacific Has Obtained a Site for Buildings.

Weyburn, Sask., Aug. 14—The contract has been awarded by the C.P.R. to Messrs. L. Gray & Co., of Minneapolis, for the construction of three and a half miles of pipe line, and work is about to begin. This work is in conjunction with the acquisition by the company, under recent agreement with the municipal authorities, of the water rights on the South river to the east of the city, and when completed will furnish all the water necessary for the requirements of the company in connection with the main division point to be established in Weyburn on the completion of the new line through to Lethbridge.

It is currently reported here that the C.P.R. have purchased a site of 10 acres at this point on which to erect shops. No confirmation can be obtained of this report, as the owners of the property are not in the city but it is generally conceded that developments of this nature will be included in the company's programme in the near future. The opening of the new southern line to Lethbridge will render it essential that the company have full facilities at this point, in order to handle the traffic, and extensive additions to the present plant are looked for.

NEVER LET GO OF THE KNOB OF DOOR

Farm Lands Are Very Greatly Sought After in Humboldt District.

Humboldt, Sask., Aug. 14—Possibly few better instances of the way in which farm lands in the Humboldt district are regarded, could be given than an instance which occurred in this town when some country near the Humboldt lands were being opened for entry and a crowd of settlers who were desirous of securing it waited in the street all night for the Dominion Land office to open.

There were a number of them, in fact, who not only kept their vigil throughout the entire night but who waited all the Sunday previous as well. The man who was there first, however, and who retained his grasp of the doorknob for the whole period was successful in securing the first choice. The Humboldt land office had an exceptionally busy month during June, the Humboldt offices totalling one hundred and comprising nearly 20,000 acres of land.

FORTUNE TELLING OFFERED.

Ottawa, Aug. 14—The telling of fortunes by mail is not to be encouraged in Canada. Circulars posted in Paris, France, offering to forecast the horoscopes of people for $3 having been found in the mails, the postoffice department has issued a circular, directing postmasters to look out for these missives and to send them to the dead letter office.

AGAINST DISEASED CHINESE.

Washington, Aug. 14—Drastic steps are to be taken by commissioner general of immigration Canada, to prevent the importation of Chalmers afflicted with the dreaded hook worm disease through the Pacific coast. Hundreds of Chinese victims of the disease landed on the Pacific coast for transportation to other lands have been treated at government expense recently.

LODGING

Oh, the low, marshy meadow
Where pale violets lie below,
While round their feet the bramble
vines
Twine to and fro.
And deep in dripping moss banks
White violets grow!

Three dragon flies are flitting
All day on emerald wings.
And perched on nodding cattails
The blackbird sits and swines,
And far and near amid the reeds
The drowning loon sings.

On the dry, stony hillside,
Flowing and bare and steep,
Where low across the lichen
Twined around pines creep,
And over scurly mosses
Black-cock crickets leap!

Like a breath from heaven,
Pure and faint and rare,
All the scanty growing things
The soil can bear
Send their sweet smells upward in quivering air.

My very feet are weary,
With not walking there;
My lips are tired with praising
Blossoms far less fair;
My heart aches for the swampland
And the hillside bare;

Grandmother Goes to the Fair

She was a thin wispy of a woman with a wrinkled nose; eyes that looked out on everything with startingly youthful eagerness and a general air of alertness that was bird-like. She was a grandmother woman with small gransons tugging at either hand and bobbing about like corks in the stream of people that flowed off the cars and into the fair grounds yesterday. The three of them were out for a good time. The grandmother's black bag purse had a fat bulge in it, and grandmother's hat had slipped just a little rakishly to one side, and had not been straightened fussily on the way, silver hair, which proved that grandmother was very much excited, and little things like filled hats were of no consequence.

Grey skies and a thin drizzle of rain did not prevent the three from slushing happily about. The two boys could not resist the appetizing smell of "hot dogs" grilling while the man in the white coat and apron, chanting a little song in their praise that made a body hunger than ever. They pleaded for just one, then one between them. They coaxed and they coaxed and they coaxed, until Granny finally yielded. The boys and the man in white handed out two smoking buns choked with sausage and dripping mustard.

They couldn't eat half of course, but when they dragged Granny in to see the dogs, long lines of wispy-eyed people stared at by a stranger, and Granny patted the dogs' heads daintily. She liked the little terrier, that was so small it looked like a speck of black in its kennel, and the haughty greyhound that had to house all kind of small dogs, and a blue silky dog to lie on. Her hands went up in amazement when she saw a kennel filled up as a tiny brownish-silken creature, half dog and half cat, and even little bit pictures. She crooned in the funny way women do to dogs and babies and the two who occupied the gorgeous little room came from under the bed and sniffed at the finger she had poked through at them. The two gransons meantime had wandered away to where the bigger dogs roared a chorus of complaint against their confinement, and Grannie experienced an awful moment or two in which she thought she had lost them. She found them staring back at a ferocious looking bull terrier marked "Dangers."

Granny was anxious to get to the manufacturers' building, and the display of women's work there. The boys were not so enthusiastic. Only the promise of bags of peanuts, and popcorn prevailed. There was a great crowd in the building. Those who were made of salt had come in out of the rain, and were scurrying about, scrambling for the fans, and the samples of cake and cocoa and the pencils and little slates that were being handed out. The boys wanted to stay and see if they would get something, but Grannie hurried them upstairs to where the quilts and "tidies" and handpainted cups and saucers were displayed.

The boys were only interested in the school section. They wanted to see whether Jackey White, who "is the best writer in the school," was a girl or whether that Smith girl, "the stick-up one who is always saying she is going to be an artist," she grows up," got anything for her horse's shoe. Her horse's head, which looked very much as if it had a very severe case of toothache, had been passed over. The youthful artist was close, a very forlorn little girl not a bit "stick-up," and the boys, all their galleries aroused sympathy with her by pulling her hair as they passed and then grinning. The bull-terrier seemed to cheer her up, for she smiled back at them and gave her head a toss. Grannie meanwhile was lingering over the dainty bits of embroidery, fingering the lace that was as fine as cobwebs or heavy with thousands and thousands of stitches. It said, "Please do not handle," but who could resist just touching it. There were gaudy pains into a "pattern." It took Grannie back to the days in old Ontario when the quilting bee was popular. It was as if a quilting bee the men folk were allowed to come in for supper, that she had met Grandfather. When the boys came in search of their friend, a misty-eyed Grannie staring back into the yesterday, standing in front of a quilt of the pattern known as "dog-eared." There was a wonderful display of women's work, all kinds of it, and Grannie lingered such a long time over the exhibit that the boys thought she would never come.

By this time the rain had ceased. Out of the building the three joined the crowd that went around the board walk like a great snake bulged in places where there was no out-door exhibition, and this in others.

There was the blood-stirring confusion of sounds in the hall to face the crowd that went around the board walk like a great snake bulged in places where there was no out-door exhibition, and this in others.

They rested for a while in the tent of the Women's council of the United States before they started for the cars and home. They hadn't seen half, but another day Grannie promised them.

INCRIMINATING

"My wife will know I drank too much in the banquet."
"Why you are walking straight enough."
"But look at the umbrella I picked out."—Pittsburgh Post.

According to insurance experts, seawater is a more efficient extinguisher than small fires, particularly burning liquids, than sand.

Comes Now the Soul Portrait

Soul photography—have you tried it? Miss Emma Gerhardt, of St. Louis, one of the exponents of this new idea, says:

"In every man or woman there are traits which those who love them can see, though they are not apparent to the acquaintance or even the close friend. These traits can be read in the face when that face loses its self-conscious expression which makes every man or woman we think people are looking at."

"Every human being is constantly posing. We may not know it, but we are. There are a thousand and one little superficial things about every man and woman which cover up real self. And these things overshadow all else in photographs."

"To get the soul photograph effect, make my subjects remove all articles of dress which are apt to catch the eyes. I take down the hair of women. I take away a shawl over the bare shoulders. As for the men, none can take a good photograph wearing a white collar. The linen gives them an appearance of stiffness, and stands out in the picture above everything else, making them look like walking dollar advertisements."

"Then I seat my subject in whatever pose I think would be best and get his mind away from the fact that he is going to have his picture taken. I make him think of something else and then, when his mind is a blank as far as the camera is concerned, I snap him."

"Soul photography is an art, and it takes a love of art into the process of photography. The entire secret, I think, apart from the unconscious lies in not photographing the eyes. The eyes will tell a thousand different stories, each one of them false, and the pictures are reproduced in the camera. The facial lines, the mouth, the forehead, the cheeks, and the indefinable something that is in every face."

Jane Addams on Modest Dress

Miss Jane Addams, head of Hull House and prominent in the feminist movement, is one of those in Chicago who agree with Mrs. Edwin Gould that it is time for a reaction against the immodest styles of the day.

"I am afraid I am poor authority to come to in regard to modes for women," Miss Addams said, "but I at least can say the moral influence of some of the styles of the day is far from good. I think a general agitation against that which is suggestive in woman's garb would be of service to society. Women should get back to more consecutive lines of dress, and I believe they will do so. It is possible to dress with every consideration of modesty and still preserve woman's physical charms. Some of the dresses seen on the streets and in other public places are both immodest and suggestive. The effect of such dressing is not wholesome for the community."

"I quite agree with Mrs. Gould that the pendulum has swung too far in the matter of woman's dress and that it is time we returned to a more modest and conventional system," said Dr. Alma Dwyer, "I do not believe in getting too far away from the prevailing modes. One should conform to the general principles but should avoid what we might call the excesses. It is my observation that the women who resort to the suggestive and to the extreme are not representative in the social world."

"Many of the gowns worn in public today appeal to grosser minds, but find no commendation among those who are really the good women of the country. I am in favor of any general agitation that will bring back more modest modes."

SPORTOGRAPHY.

Just Ten Years Ago Today
Just Ten Years Ago Today

It seems but yesterday, but in reality it was just ten years ago today that Jim Jeffries and Jim Corbett mingled in their second battle. As the post says, "How swift the years, how swift and fleet, how very fast upon their feet."

That battle marked an epoch in the boxing game. It was "Gentleman Jim's" appearance in the ring. It was Jeff's last important fight with a palooka. Also, it was the last big bout between white heavyweights up to date. And it was the very apogee of Jeff's fighting career. And all it took place ten years ago.

On the fourteenth of August, 1903, the whole sporting world awaited with bated—and baited—breath the news of the fight between the two men who on the quiver with excitement, and there were not half enough quivers to go round. Local dealers reported at the time that there never had been such a demand for quivers.

Every train into San Francisco, according to an ancient print of that period, brought crowds of fans into the city. The gate receipts were $23,000, which broke all records except the Jeffries-Sharkey battle in New York.

In the first Jeffries-Corbett battle in 1900 "Gentleman Jim" made his former sparring partner look foolish for 20 years, and it looked like Jeff was due to become an ex-champion A desperate rally in the twenty-third saved him.

Corbett believed that Jeff had won by a lucky punch, and yearned for another chance. The pugnacious one had been a bass clerk in San Francisco before he took to the fighting game, and he had many friends in California who backed him; but he could win it. It was a new Jeffries who fought Corbett that day. At last he had learned something of the art of boxing, and Corbett, the master of glove work and foot work, met his match at every point of the game, and in the tenth was stretched out for the count.

Although the Minto Cup is a professional league and members of any organization, with endeavor to challenge on their former grounds of amateur champions of Canada. Officially nothing has been said in the Minto Cup. Many city mounted but the fact flying around is that the Minto Cup is a challenge will go forth this week.

RHEUMATISM KEPT HIM IN BED

Suffered Tortures Until
"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Him
McMILLAN'S CORNER, ONT.

Says, July, 1910
"Your remedy, 'Fruit-a-lives' is a perfect panacea for Rheumatism. For years, I suffered distressing pain from Sciatica or Sciatic Rheumatism, being unable to move for days at a time. I went to different doctors who told me there was no use doing anything—it would pass away. They gave me mustard plasters and other remedies that did no good. Plasters took no effect on me—except to blister me and make raw spots. I took many advertised remedies without benefit, but fortunately about two years ago, I got 'Fruit-a-lives' and they cured me."

Since then, I take 'Fruit-a-lives' occasionally and keep free of pain. I am satisfied 'Fruit-a-lives' cured my Rheumatism and they will cure anyone who takes them as directed. If this letter would be of value to you, published by the Editor of THE EDMONTON DAILY CAPITAL. Indeed, this letter is of value to us and to the thousands of sufferers from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago and Neuralgia. It points the way to a certain cure. See a box, 6 for $2.50 retail, 12c. At dealers or from 'Fruit-a-lives' Limited, Ontario.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY PARTY

PRINCE HENRY OF PRUSSIA

PASSES SIX MILESTONES TODAY
Prince Henry of Prussia, the sailor brother of Emperor William, passes his fifty-first milestone today. It was recently reported that the prince was soon to visit America. On a previous visit, Nov. 14, 1904, 10 years ago, he was the recipient of cordial national, municipal and social honors, and did not leave without the good feeling between Germany and the United States, which had been somewhat strained by the attitude of the German naval commander at Manila a few years ago.

Prince Henry is a grand admirer of the German fleet in Chinese waters. Of late years he has been much interested in military aviation, and himself learned to fly two years ago. He flew several times last month in a naval hydroaeroplane competition at Kiel. The prince has a castle at Kiel, where he spends most of his time when ashore. Prince Henry married Princess Irene of Hesse a quarter of a century ago.

Ernest Thompson Seton, the famous author of nature stories, whose gift you have made his human characters seem almost equal in intelligence to the so-called "lower animals"—almost, but not quite—was born in South Shields, England, 53 years ago today. His youth was spent in the backwoods of western Canada and on the western plains, and there he became acquainted with those four-footed and winged creatures whose lives and tragedies he has so sympathetically shared in such books as "Wild Animals of the West," "Lives of the Hunted," "His formal education was secured at Toronto College Institution and in London. He immigrated to Canada in 1886, he became a naturalized citizen of the Manitoba government, and in that capacity gained the material for his earliest books, "Mammals of Manitoba" and "Birds of Manitoba." All this time he entertained an ambition to become a painter and illustrator of animals, as well as a writer, and this ambition was realized by six years of art study in Paris. It was in the French capital that he met his wife, Grace Oulfin, an American newspaper correspondent and magazine contributor. Mrs. Seton was born in Sacramento, Cal., and her beauty, charm and rare intellectual attainments, so often characteristic of the "native daughters of the Golden West," quickly captured the heart of the young author and artist. The covers and title pages of most of Mr. Seton's books were designed by his wife, and she has also attended to the revision of the manuscripts and the reading of the proofs. Soon after their marriage the Setons went on a honeymoon trip through the Rocky Mountains, covering over 10,000 miles in Canada and the States. It was this journey that gave Mrs. Seton the material for her charming book, "A Woman Tenderfoot," and subsequent trips resulted in the volume, "Montana Wife." The Seton country home in Connecticut is situated in a lonely and wild spot where nature still reigns supreme, and yet is not far distant from the teeming millions of the American metropolises.

Dr. Fowler's EXTRACT OF Wild Strawberry

Soon Relieved Their Sufferings.

THEIR TROUBLE WAS DIARRHŒA.

Mrs. Edward Kingston, Mirror Alta., writes: "Coming to the West from B.C. in the summer of 1910 we were faced to face with the serious problem of being able to secure good drinking water; this we could not get, so were obliged to drink water containing a great deal of alkali, with the result that we were all troubled with Diarrhœa. For remedy we had a bottle of Dr. Fowler's EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY in the house, which soon relieved our sufferings. I have always kept a bottle of this house since obtaining such beneficial results from its use when my boy, as was usually troubled."

"It has always proved a friend in need."

Make up your mind to insist on getting "Dr. Fowler's," when you go to your local dealer. Don't accept some of the "phony" preparations that some of the unscrupulous dealers try to pass off as "Dr. Fowler's."

Draw at 'Peg

Winnipeg, Aug. 14.—Mickey McIntyre, of Saskatoon, and George Ashe, the New York photo champion middleweights, boxed 12 rounds to a draw in the auditorium last night. It was a sparkling bout throughout, exchanges being about level all the time, though Mickey went for Ashe's face on which were marks left by Jack Dillon on Friday last. Ashe had the better of it, however, in the clinches, going for the body, and the result was a draw, and was about the worth of the bout. McIntyre held the advantage in a few rounds, his left being particularly useful, but Ashe always came back with his hard body blows.

CHUNG PUO WINS.
New York, Aug. 14.—T. B. Chung, a young Chinese lightweight of Boston, made Pat McCarthy, a local boxer, quit in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout last night. Chung is said to be the first Chinese boxer to appear in a New York ring.

MILLERS STILL WINNING FROM REGINA REDLEGS

Northrup Pitched Nice Game But Both Teams Played Poor Game.

Moose Jaw, Aug. 14.—Northrup on the mound for the locals and pitching great ball in the pitcher's box sustained their third straight defeat of the series, 4-2. Butleroff allowed 8 hits while Northrup only allowed four. Both pitchers got miserable support when it was most needed. The Sox scored their first run in the first on a pass, sacrifice hit, single and a sacrifice fly. In the second with the bases full on an error, a single and a walk, and with two out, Stadahl, the sensational local left fielder, drove the ball through the pitcher's box to deep center field, clearing the bases.

In the fourth with two on, Oatler Moore made a play to catch Krueger off first base, but Wend dropped the ball for an instant and with no one covering the home plate, Baker raced across with Regina's second score. In the fifth the Robins put over another run. Saxon and Rossback were easy outs, Wend doubled and went to third on a passed ball and scored when Fortier singled. O'Day was purposely walked and Johnson fouled the ball, straight down, hitting his feet and rolling a short ways in the diamond and after it had been thrown to first base, Umpire Dyer called the batter out. This brought forth a storm of protest from Manager Wood and Johnson but Dyer evidently thought he was right as it stood as he called it. O'Day, the local second baseman, in four times up singled, drew two passes and went to first and second on Williams' wild throw to first.

Regina ... 100 100 000—2-4-1
Moose Jaw ... 030 001 100—4-8-3
Batteries: Butleroff and Duggan; Northrup and Moore.

AUSTRALIAN CRICKET.

Ozama, Aug. 14.—The Australians again proved easy winners over eastern Canadians in the second cricket match at Victoria hall grounds yesterday. Wallace, the Montreal man, was the only eastern Canadian man to make a stand as the first innings, and after being in for about two hours, he came down and retired for 90 runs.

E. A. F. L. NEWS.

A meeting of the league executive was held in the Y.M.C.A. Tuesday, August 12th. The same between Strohman and Radick, which was called nine and a half minutes from full time on account of darkness, came up for discussion. It was decided that the clubs must play off the nine and a half minutes or Strohman take the points, as they were a goal up when play was called.

The remaining game yet to be played in the senior division, Radick vs. Sons of Scotland, is fixed for Wednesday, August 20th, on the old exhibition grounds. Referee, Tom Foster.

Charity Shield Competition.

A meeting was held the same evening to arrange for this competition. Mr. Parrish was present and expressed his desire that the league executive take charge of the competition.

Last year's games did not bring in anything to write home about. Several clubs have expressed their willingness to forego any share in the game receipts, and it is hoped that all clubs taking part in the competition will consent to do this, and thereby enable the executive to hand to the United Aids something worth while.

League Secretary Davies will act as secretary of the competition, and registration forms may be obtained from him on and from Monday, the 18th inst. The entrance is again $5.00, and it is noted that all registrations must be in the hands of the secretary not later than the 26th inst. No registration will be accepted after this date.

Arrangements for this game are now completed. Interest being taken in him, and given the weather, attendance bids fair to outlive that at the Cornhill, which at present holds the record.

The team will, it is hoped, be the same that broke Calgary's soccer record. Jim Kinsman declares that his knee is better, and he will be on the job on Saturday. Good luck to you Jim; we are glad to hear it, and now feel quite certain of registering another win.

A complimentary dinner is to be given to the Calgary team the same evening at the Peppers Cafe, Quebec ave

ANNUAL REPORT OF CITY ISSUED

Municipal Report for Present Year Largest Ever Published by Edmonton.

The advance copies of the eighth annual report of the city of Edmonton reached the city hall yesterday afternoon and were handed around to the mayor and commissioners by the clerk. This report covers the operations of all the departments of the city for the year ending October 31, 1912.

The report contains 240 pages, the largest of the eight that have been issued since Edmonton was incorporated as a city, and containing over 500 pages more than there in last year's volume.

One of the new features of this report is that the departmental reports are interspersed with full page half-tone illustrations of the city parks. These are printed in a nice handy form, and enhance the appearance of the volume considerably. Another new feature is that in addition to the photos of the mayor, commissioners and heads of departments in office this year, those who filled similar positions last year are given space in the first few pages. One page is given to illustrating the 1912 members of the city council, and another page to the 1913 council. In all there are five pages of half-tone pictures of the members of the council and the city officials for both 1912 and 1913.

The compilation of such a large volume requires a great deal of time and the utmost care in checking up the figures and making a proper arrangement of the same for publication. This work has been done under the supervision of Mr. Cox, the city clerk, and it reflects credit on his department.

The delay in getting out the volume has been due principally to the fact that the clerks and clerical staff have been closing the books and the auditor's report for several months. Arrangements are being made to have the final annual year close with the calendar year in future.
